GUIDED TOURS

OF THE AJACCIO REGION

Discover Ajaccio with our guided tours. Pierre-André, our guide, but above all an Ajaccio native, is here to share his passion for his home town. As you explore the city's alleys, he will be sure to point out THE key detail that makes your surroundings so exceptional. You will leave the tour with plenty of anecdotes to tell and above all, a desire to discover other iconic places in the city. Sometimes, he will work side by side with another expert of our region and its traditions... Here is a quick overview of the programme...

MUSEUMS

- Ajaccio, the Imperial City: the old town and the Bonaparte House
New to Ajaccio? This is the tour to get you acquainted with the city. Join Pierre-André on a discovery of the old town's highlights (rue Bonaparte, Cathedral...), keeping the most symbolic of them all for last: the Bonaparte House. Discover the mansion where Napoleon, the future Emperor of France, was born.
- Masterpieces from the Palais Fesch, Museum of Fine Arts
Explore the museum and admire the works of Italian painters such as Botticelli, Veronese or Titian. The Fesch Palace ranks just behind the Louvre in terms of the importance of its collection of Italian paintings.

ICONIC PLACES

- Storming the Ajaccio citadel
Originally a mere rocky promontory, it was here that the Genoese laid Ajaccio's foundation stone in 1492. Previously a military site, the citadel was for a long time closed to the public. Having recently come under the city's ownership, it is currently being rehabilitated, but Pierre-André can open its still locked doors for you. He will reveal the secrets of this citadel, which is so dear to the residents of Ajaccio.
- The Sanguinaires cemetery: celebrities and anecdotes
When arriving in Ajaccio, one is sure to notice, in the distance, the marine cemetery and its funeral chapels facing the sea, as if they were watching over the city... Experience the heart of this contemplative site, where Ajaccio families and famous figures are buried side by side: The famed Tino Rossi, resistant Fred Scamaroni, François Coty, the great perfume maker, and the writer Dorothy Carrington...

ENCOUNTERS

- Ajaccio and its "red gold"
Immerse yourself in the Ajaccio of the coral reef divers. Pierre-André will present the history of these divers who risked their lives harvesting the red gold of the Mediterranean. He will then introduce you to Anne-Marie, an artisan jeweller, who will demonstrate the art of coral cutting in her workshop-boutique. Discover how she transforms this red gold into magnificent jewels...
- The aperitif tour
What if the city tour ended with an aperitif at an iconic Ajaccio wine bar? That's what this aperitif tour is all about! Before getting to this stage, Pierre-André will test your knowledge by enlivening his guided tour of Ajaccio with imaginary anecdotes; it's up to you to distinguish what's true from what isn't... Upon which, Raphael, Master Sommelier, will take over. Raphael will lead a tasting of 3 Ajaccio PDO wines, whilst presenting all their characteristics over a delightful 2-hour session.

THE CITADEL

Located in the heart of Ajaccio, the first stone of Miollis Citadel was laid in 1492, and it has continued to undergo transformations up to the present day. It was used until recently by the French military. The Citadel was built on a strategic site by the Genoese in order to effectively protect the city from seaborne raids. It originally consisted of a dungeon or citadel (castello) and a lower compound. The fortified castle was erected in 1492 under the authority of the Genoese Office of St. George. In 1553, following the arrival of Sampiero and French troops, enlargement works were carried out. In 1559, Giovan Giacomo Palearo, an engineer known as "il Fratino", strengthened the fortifications and separated the Citadel from the rest of the city. In the middle of the eighteenth century, with the Republic of Genoa on its knees and facing endless waves of Corsican revolts led by Pasquale Paoli, the French gradually took control of the island. The island was finally ceded to the French in 1768. At the beginning of the French period, the Citadel was enlarged in order to enhance its defensive character, with the construction of the casemates and the lower bastion artillery battery. During this period, the Citadel's forces increased, from fewer than 100 soldiers under Genoese rule, to nearly 800 French soldiers. New buildings were erected in the compound, and the existing ones were enlarged. Then, in 1789, the ditches were emptied in order to improve sanitation. During the nineteenth century, the defensive role of the Citadel waned, and it gradually became a military barracks. The Citadel was occupied by the Italian fascists during the Second World War, who detained heroic resistance fighter Fred Scamaroni, founder of the Gaullist network "Action R2 Corse" in 1941; in January 1943, General de Gaulle ordered Scaramoni to unify the Resistance. Scaramoni was subsequently arrested by the OVRA (Italian counter-espionage service). He chose to take his own life rather than reveal anything. In 2019, the city of Ajaccio finally acquired the citadel, with the aim of reopening it to the public in July 2021. The citadel is open to Ajaccio residents and the wider public, to narrate this project through an artistic, creative dynamic. Creators and visitors thus experience the same space. The construction site is open to show the development process.

The "Naporama" museum is originally the story of a group of passionate people, intent on reconstructing scenes from Napoleon's life with Playmobil figurines. Except that, at the time, Napoleon-themed Playmobil figurines did not exist. So they had to be custom-made, by hand-painting almost 800 Playmobil figurines. Then, for the sake of historical accuracy, the models were made from lithographs to be as true to life as possible. Thus, 23 life scenes have been reconstructed.

Originally a hamlet of Bocognano populated by Upper Gravona shepherds transhuming in the Mezzana plains, Afa became a municipality relatively recently (1851), and consists of four hamlets laid out around a church. Under the proud silhouette of Monte Gozzi, a pretty climbing spot of regional repute, the village has preserved its distinguished architecture of small stone houses and restored bread ovens, which are used for community festivities. Afa is nevertheless a thriving community, with a growing population, several shops, a pronounced associative and sporting life, and a still-lively agricultural and pastoral tradition.

SANGUINAIRES ISLANDS PARATA POINT

Among France's most noteworthy sites.

This is above all an exceptional natural site, renowned for its flamboyant sunsets. The "Sanguinaires" islands ("Bloodthirsty islands"), as they are commonly known here, are undoubtedly the Gulf of Ajaccio's most iconic site. For air and sea travellers alike, the sight of this archipelago indicates that they will shortly be reaching Ajaccio. The landscape's coastal character, framed by the mountains, is enlivened by a succession of highlights, places that call for one's attention, and underscored by elevated structures, towers, a lighthouse, a semaphore. Among the seabirds peacefully nesting here, we can mention the yellow-legged gull, more rarely Cory's shearwater, the laughing gull and the Audouin gull. A unique flora can also be admired here, with more than 150 species on Mezu Mare, the main island, some of which are rare or even absent from the rest of Corsica, including the spectacular fly-eating arum. The Sanguinaires Islands also boast a rich, mysterious history. Many a traveller's stories, most famously Alphonse Daudet's "Les lettres de mon moulin", allude to the presence of settlements on these fierce islands. Human presence is said to date back to the sixteenth century, with the construction of a Genoese tower on the site of the current lighthouse. In 1806, Mezu Mare became a sanitary outpost, with the construction of a lazaretto, which now lies in ruins, for coral fishermen returning from Africa. The semaphore was commissioned in 1865, and decommissioned in 1955. This is a must-see.

PREHISTORIC SITE

FILITOSA

For 8,000 years, Filitosa has been jealously guarding its statues, menhirs, circular monuments and mysteries. A true open-air museum, Filitosa, a scheduled historical monument, preserves the traces of long-standing settlement, from the 6th millennium BC to the Roman occupation. We have just inaugurated a brand new museum dedicated to statuary art, with staged collections and chronological & thematic visiting itineraries. Guided tours on Sundays. We offer educational games for children's groups (treasure hunts, quests...) (bookings required).

Pila Canale, post code 20123, is a small village in the Taravo valley, south of Ajaccio. This village, like many others, has suffered from rural depopulation.

The village was granted a reprieve from oblivion, as it were, when its typical appearance and ambiance were recreated in the city. This is where time meets place: in the lamplight's glow, around a traditional Corsican meal, our culinary heritage lives on through simple recipes handed down by our mothers and grandmothers & authentic flavours created from local, fresh quality produce. Share a moment of conviviality punctuated by traditional singing, because Corsica is leavened with these dining rituals, and enriched by the chanting which is at the heart of its culture.
